GOOD NEWS UPDATE!
December 2018

This is an overview and sample of recent achievements of the Human Dignity and Humiliation Studies (HumanDHS) network:

- Celebrating our 31st Annual HumanDHS Conference in Cairo, Egypt, 2018.

  Thanks to all who were able to join us in September for our 2018 Dignity Conference in Cairo, Egypt! The group co-created a breathtaking conference, full of passion and inspiration! The room was filled with dignity and generated lifelong connections! Once again, we made a great step toward building a global dignity family!

Special Recognition of the HumanDHS Community

The #OpenRecognition movement is actively remapping the world as a World Wide Web of Trust. We are convinced that together, by illuminating our diversity, our generosity, our aspirations, by supporting the achievements of individuals and communities across the globe, by celebrating those who deserve to be recognized, we can help to create a more inclusive and meaningful society.

The HumanDHS Community Honored as Part of the Open Recognition Week

Victoria Fontan, global scholar and author of the groundbreaking book Decolonizing Peace, honored the HumanDHS community with a tribute as part of Open Recognition Week, October 22-28, 2018.

In her words, "the Human Dignity and Humiliation Studies network has placed the study and promotion of human dignity at the forefront of many academic disciplines... The network has been walking the talk of human dignity and, by recognizing everyone of its members as an equal contributor, has contributed to creating a world where dignity is recognized as being paramount to humanity."
DignityNowNYC Continues to Bring HumanDHS Friends Together

The DignityNowNYC group is a model for creating dignifying circles of ongoing connection and support! Michael Britton will share his reflections about this year of meetings, supported by Janet Gerson, Chipamong Chowdhury, Judit Revéz, David Yamada, and so many others.

Congratulations on their loving care of this ongoing circle of beacons of dignity.

Dignity Press Book Coming Soon!

The Human Climate: Facing the Divisions Inside Us and Between Us

By Carol Smaldino

This book helps the reader explore the human climate — the personal, social, and emotional context in which we live. The author suggests that in order to face the divisions inside us and between us, we need to come to better terms with our own emotions. It will be released by Dignity Press in January 2019.

(Translation: Wounded scarred transformed Living with injuries Peter Ceelen Among our beautiful clothes and clothes gapes so many wounds that scarcely scarred. The wound of the unloved child. The wound of lost dignity. The wound of grief. The wound of separation. And the scars still hurt. It is a painful lesson to learn to live with suffered injuries. But we can also grow from wounds, and sometimes we are amazed how healing from an old wound grows.)

We are deeply thankful for Uli Spalthoff and Zuzana (Zsuzsa) Luckay Mihalcinova ongoing leadership and support of Dignity Press projects. Their countless efforts to review projects and offer authors’ guidance and encouragement are deeply appreciated by all involved.

We are grateful for the contributions of professional editor Carolyn Bond and book designer Christy Collins for moving forward with Carol Smaldino’s new book and for offering to work with future DP authors.

New Publications by HumanDHS Scholars

- Systemic Humiliation in America: Finding Dignity within Systems of Degradation edited by Daniel Rothbart

  The primary theme of this volume is that certain systems in America exert controls over targeted population groups through mechanisms of humiliation that are designed to invade their minds, warp their thoughts, annul their self-esteem, and render them docile to the more powerful social forces. With this volume we introduce the term “systemic humiliation” to refer to a social system’s routine norms, the “taken for granted” rules, the “common sense” administrative decisions, and the seemingly innocent procedures, all of which are strategically deployed to diminish the self-esteem of certain population groups.

- Workplace Bullying and Mobbing in the United States edited by Maureen Duffy and David Yamada

  Congratulations to Maureen Duffy and David Yamada (pictured) for publishing a remarkable, comprehensive resource for understanding damaging relationships in the workplace: "Offering multidisciplinary research and analysis on workplace bullying and mobbing, this two-volume set explores the prevalence of these behaviors in sectors ranging from K–12 education to corporate environments and exposes the damaging effects of workplace bullying on both individuals and organizations."

  Maureen Duffy is a preeminent authority on workplace mobbing behaviors. David Yamada is a highly esteemed member of the HumanDHS Board of Directors and a distinguished scholar of the law who writes a popular blog: Minding the Workplace.

Leading with Dignity: How to Create a Culture that Brings Out the Best in People
By Donna Hicks

In Leading with Dignity, Donna Hicks argues that the extent to which leaders pay attention to, recognize, and understand the dignity concerns underlying people’s grievances makes an enormous difference as to whether leaders can solve conflicts, have better relationships, and remedy toxic workplace cultures. Donna Hicks is an associate at Harvard’s Weatherhead Center for International Affairs, and she is on the Global Advisory Board for HumanDHS.

From Humiliation to DIGNITY: For a Future of Global Solidarity
Lecture given on November 14, 2018, as part of the International Education Week 2018 organized by the Office of International Services (OIS) at Teachers College (TC), Columbia University, New York City, Grace Dodge Hall 279.

In all of my talks, I always attempt to model a Humboldtian approach, as also John Dewey would have resonated with. The aim of education is, or ought to be, the dance of dignity, the dance of balancing unity in diversity (see the “infinity dance” at the Alvin Ailey Dance Theater).

The talk was followed by "gifts of dignifying art" from the 2018 dignity conference in Cairo, Egypt.

Abstract: TC has a great heritage of inspiring the world with humanistic and critical thinking about education, from the groundbreaking work of John Dewey and William Heard Kilpatrick to the achievements of their most recent successors, an education that educates in dignity and for dignity. This heritage is of highest value in today’s world, where global challenges require innovative solutions that transcend present-day strategies.

Has humankind dug themselves into a multitude of perilous crises, both despite and because of what we call progress? Yet, there are also immense windows of opportunity waiting to be used. This talk explores the notion of dignity and how it can show us a path into the future. The talk approaches the concept of dignity by inquiring about its violation, namely, humiliation.

- Humiliation
  Evelin Lindner in Philippa Perry, Humiliation, an Overtone production for BBC Radio 4, 1st April 2018
  In the wake of recent political upheavals, psychotherapist Philippa Perry examines the role that humiliation plays, at personal, economic and political levels. At the heart of this programme is the effect that humiliation has upon an individual and its potential to shape the behaviour of both individuals and communities. We hear the life story of reformed criminal Noel 'Razor' Smith and how humiliation has influenced his life - from childhood to the 33 years he spent in prison. Provoking questions of masculinity, belonging and power, humiliation is an emotion as old as human nature itself, and relevant today in the international political shifts that led to Brexit and the Presidency of Donald Trump. Perry speaks to the clinical psychologist Professor Paul Gilbert about this emotion, from the evolution of humankind to the 21st Century. She also talks to sociologist Professor Victor Seidler whose perspective is shaped not just by his professional research into masculinity and social theory, but also by his own Jewish identity. We hear from the actor and opera singer Rosie Middleton, who is starring in an upcoming opera, written by composer Michael Betteridge, based on the experiences of women who have been humiliated online by men. The arias are based on the personal experiences of Rosie and several other women. And so the programme’s gaze moves towards how victims of humiliation can begin to overcome this emotion.

- Effekten av ydmykelser

- On Dignity and Humiliation
  Annual open lecture at the Department of Psychology at the University of Oslo in Norway, Harald Schjelderups hus, Forskningsveien 3, seminar room 6, 2nd March 2018, 12.15-14.00. We thank the Department of Psychology for this invitation and Lasse Moer for a fantastic video documentation. See all of Evelin’s 2018 talks in Norway at http://conta.cc/2GGEURH.

Summary: From terrorism, war, and genocide to hatefully polarized societies to bullying and domestic violence, they often have their roots in the same dynamics of humiliation. How many of the world problems can be explained by humiliation? What happens when people feel humiliated or trampled on? If dignity is an antidote to humiliation, how can dignity be promoted?

Does a country like Norway carry a particular responsibility? Is the cultural heritage of Norway of any significance, the heritage of likeverd, dugnad, and global responsibility (Fridtjof Nansen)? What is the role of academia in this context? What is the position of psychology as a field of inquiry and as a practice?

This talk is based on Evelin Lindner's most recent book titled Honor, Humiliation, and Terror published in 2017.
