Note prepared for "Beyond Humiliation: Encouraging Human Dignity in the Lives and Work of All People," 5th Annual Meeting of Human Dignity and Humiliation Studies in Berlin, 15th -17th September, 2005

Mari Otterlei Blikom has a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology from the University of Western Australia, Perth. She is currently doing a Master's Degree in Social Psychology at the University of Science and Technology (NTNU) in Trondheim, Norway. She is a member of the research team and a part of the upcoming Refugees and Humiliation project. The title her project is A Qualitative Study on Humiliation among Refugees in Norway. Her main area of interest is the feelings of humiliation among refugees that occur in association with having to face the stress of being perceived as illegal entrants and having to justify their presence while living under the ever-present threat of being repatriated.
