

The Day a Dreamed-of World Dignity Bank was established

Francisco Gomes de Matos, a peace linguist, Recife, Brazil

One day, in the History of Humankind, an unprecedented decision was unanimously made by the members of the World Dignity Council: a World Dignity Bank would be established that would bring about a global economic (r)evolution based on these principles underlying the World Dignity University initiative:

Serving persons and peoples as dignified / dignifying economic beings / communities

Introducing the role of digninvestor, thus replacing the traditional concepts of debtor and creditor

Enabling the sharing of dignidends (dignity dividends) by all persons and peoples

Supporting the global commitment to sustainable economic cooperation and humility

Giving the concepts of bank / banking a deeper, dignifying semantic value

Helping change economic human beings into economic dignifiers

Creating, in the Economies of the World, a shared sense of digneconomic responsibility

Boldly reconceptualizing personal and collective (national) wealth, from a Dignity Economy perspective

Extending the range of business transactions to digneconomic transactions

In short, the newly designed and established World Dignity Bank would be a model for Local Dignity Banks serving their communities in a DIGNEQUALIZING WORLD.

Contributing to overcoming economic corruption, discrimination, and humiliation.
