Overview Over Interviews Carried Out for the Research Project on Humiliation at the University of Oslo 1997-2001

© Evelin Gerda Lindner, 2000

A four-year research project (1997-2001) was designed by the author in 1996 to explore the role of humiliation. The project is being conducted at the University of Oslo (1997-2001) and is entitled The Feeling of Being Humiliated: A Central Theme in Armed Conflicts. A Study of the Role of Humiliation in Somalia, and Rwanda/Burundi, Between the Warring Parties, and in Relation to Third Intervening Parties.

216 qualitative interviews have been carried out by the author, addressing Somalia, Rwanda and Burundi and their history of genocidal killings, as specified in Table 1. From 1998 to 1999 the interviews were carried out in Africa (in Hargeisa, capital of Somaliland, in Kigali and other places in Rwanda, in Bujumbura, capital of Burundi, in Nairobi in Kenya, and in Cairo in Egypt), and from 1997 to 2001 also in Europe (in Norway, Germany, Switzerland, France, and in Belgium). The interviews were often part of longer relationships between the researcher and the interlocutor, and in many cases included several sittings. Trust was built and authentic encounters were sought, inscribed in non-humiliating relationships that safeguarded everybody's dignity. Interlocutors were invited to become 'co-researchers' in a reflective dialogue with the researcher, involving not only the interviewee and the researcher but also various scholars through their ideas that were included.

As the title of the project indicates, three groups had to be interviewed, namely both the conflict parties in Somalia and Rwanda/Burundi, and representatives of third parties who intervene. These three groups stand in a set of triangular relationships (at least this is the minimum version – where there are more than two opponents, as is the case in most conflicts, the pattern, obviously, has more than three corners). Both in Somalia and Rwanda/Burundi, representatives of the 'opponents' and the 'third party' were approached.

Some of the interview conversations were filmed (altogether the author produced 10 hours of film, comprising many interviews, but also images of Somaliland and Rwanda), other interviews were taped on mini discs (altogether more than 100 hours of audio tape), and in situations where this seemed inappropriate the researcher made notes. The interviews and conversations were conducted in different languages; most of them in English (Somalia) and French (Great Lakes), many in German, and in Norwegian.

The interviews relating to Somalia and Rwanda / Burundi were carried out on the background on a network of relationships in Germany and a knowledge base on German history that the researcher, born in West Germany after World War II as child of a so-called 'refugee-family,' acquired through several decades. This knowledge base was expanded between 1997 and 2001 by monitoring the current German 'awakening' with respect to painful memories stemming from the time of Hitler's rule. During the past few years, diverse media programmes began documenting how Germans, who did not talk for decades about their experiences during Hitler's reign, start talking at present.

The researcher sought also contact with aristocratic circles in Germany that were involved in resistance against Hitler and interviews were carried out (1999) that were embedded in these relationships. Furthermore, the researcher spoke to Holocaust survivors, among others the founder and organiser of an academic education programme on the Holocaust (1999, John Steiner, Sonoma University, USA).

58 interviews	with Somalis in Africa and Europe
45 interviews	with Rwandans and Burundians in Africa and Europe
3 interviews	with Kenyans

Table 1: Distribution of interviews addressing Somalia, Rwanda and Burundi

The identity of interlocutors will in many cases not be exposed in the following overview in order to protect their safety or political survival. A great responsibility lies on the researcher in this respect. Despite of the hope that current and future leaders in Somalia, Rwanda and Burundi will be able to secure a peaceful development of their countries, people have not stopped being afraid. The interview overview is hopefully written with sufficient sensitivity for the fear people still live in, and will not hurt people who confided in the researcher. Confidentiality is an important reason for not listing the interviews that have been carried out more explicitly, or publish any systematisation of them in any book or thesis; it would be too easy to identify interviewees who ought to be protected.

In the following the interviews are presented according to the categories used in Table 1, and in each category the interviews are listed according to the date on which the first contact was made. As mentioned earlier, in most cases this date was but the beginning of a relationship that entailed many meetings.
